

It has come to my attention that Sinclair Broadcasting has decided to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. This is not appropriate. Sinclair uses public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. It is not in the interest of a fair democracy to allow large corporations to control the airwaves since their viewpoints do not necessarily match those of the communities they serve.

I encourage the FCC to critically evaluate license renewal and to take substantive steps that will ensure that the American public is not fed propaganda masked as unbiased reporting.
